MESSAGE FROM H.E. THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL, THE
Rt. HON. G. B. VAN ZYL

The Trustees of the South African Library, Cape Town, desire to make better known, both in the Union and elsewhere, the national treasures contained in the Library. With this object in view they are issuing a Quarterly Bulletin, of which this is the first number. The Bulletin will contain original articles about the valuable national collections now in the Library, and all its historical associations.

The Trustees already publish an Annual Report and the Grey Bibliographies, and pioneer bibliographical work has been undertaken.

The issue of a Bulletin similar to those produced by the Bodleian Library and the British Museum is a great forward step, and will bring to the notice of the people the rich and important collection of rare books and Africana, newspapers, serial publications—all of a predominantly reference character—which are housed at the Library and are there for the use of the people and the study of our history.

All have heard of the Dernian Collection, but there are many others such as the Grey and Fairbridge Collections. There are reference books from the libraries of Dr. Pappe, Sir Thomas Muir and others; private papers of great historical value of such public men as J. X. Merriman, Sir James Rose-Innes, and J. H. Hofmeyr ('Onze Jan'). Then there is the very fine Springbok Library which was presented by the people of Britain as a tribute to South African hospitality to British troops.

BOODSKAP VAN SY EKSELLENSIE
DIE GOEWERNEUR-GENERAAL, DIE
HOOGEDELAGBARE G. B. VAN ZYL

Dit is die begeerde van die Kuratore van die Suid-Afrikaanse Biblioteek, Kaapstad, om die nasionale skatte wat in die Biblioteek gehuisves is, beter bekend te stel, beide in die Unie en elders. Met hierdie doel voor oë publiseer hulle 'n Kwartaalblad waarvan hierdie die eerste uitgawe is. Die Blad sal oorspronklike artikels bevat oor die waardevolle nasionale versameling in die Biblioteek, en al die historiese aangeleenthede daarvan.

Die Kuratore gee alreeds 'n Jaarlikse Verslag en die Grey Bibliografie-reeks uit en baanbrekerswerk word op bibliografiese gebied onderneem.

Dit uitgawe van 'n bulletin gelykstaande aan die wat deur die Bodleian en Britse Museum Biblioteke uitgereik word, is 'n groot voorwaartse stap, en sal dien om die ryke en kosbare versameling van seldsame boeke en Africana, koerante, vervolgydskrifte—almal oorheesend van naslaangehalte—wat in die biblioteek gehergberg word en beskikbaar gestel is vir die volk en die bestudering van ons geskiedenis, onder die aandag van die publiek te bring.

Almal weet van die Dernian Versameling, maar daar is baie ander soos byvoorbeeld die Grey- en Fairbridge-versamelings. Daar is verwysingsboeke uit die biblioteke van Dr. Pappe, Sir Thomas Muir en andere, privaat geskrifte van groot geskiedkundige waarde van sulke volksmanne soos J. X. Merriman, Sir James Rose-Innes en J. H. Hofmeyr ('Onze Jan'). Dan is daar die pragtige Springbok-biblioteek wat deur die volk van Brittanje geskenk is as 'n huldeblyk vir Suid-Afrikaanse gasvryheid aan die Britse troepe.

The Library contains 250,000 volumes, strong on the historical side, but representing most branches of knowledge.

I congratulate the Trustees on their undertaking. It is a great forward movement deserving the wholehearted support of the public.

NOTES AND NEWS

The aims and objects of this Bulletin can be very briefly stated. They are, firstly, to publish notes, original articles and bibliographies about the wealth of printed and manuscript material in the South African Library, both of general and Africana interest; secondly, to print or reprint works (or parts of works) in the Library that are not easily accessible; thirdly, to describe new acquisitions of interest, and draw attention to gaps in the Library's collections that should be filled; and lastly, to record the output of South African literature of all kinds, in all languages. The Bulletin will appear quarterly, and it is hoped to include in the booklist all South African books and pamphlets received at the Library in the preceding quarter, including works published about the Union in other parts of Africa and overseas. We hope also to keep a record of the birth and demise of South African serial publications, and to maintain what is so often called for, and rarely at hand, a list of works currently published by the Government Printer.

Ons is van plan om aantekeninge en artikels soms in Engels soms in Afrikaans uit te gee. Die kosbare skatte wat in die S.-A. Biblioteek gehuisves word, behoort aan alle seksies van die volk, en ons vernaamste doel is om die belangstelling van al ons landsmanne in hul gemeen-

'n Gemeenskaplike erfenis skaplike erfenis aan te wakker. Oor 'n tydperk van meer as honderd jaar het die Biblioteek 'n groot en veelsydige versameling opgebou waarin 'n mens die ontwikkeling van ons geskiedenis en kultuur, van die vroegste dae af, maklik kan gadeslaan. Wat ons Hollands-Afrikaanse tradisies betref, wil ons net melding maak van geskiedkundige dokumente soos die Dagboek van Adam Tas, ou Hollandse boeke (en ook boeke in Latyn, Grieks en Duits) in die von Dessim-versameling; die seldsame eksemplaar van Borcherts se gediggië De Maan (1802) en ook van Meurant se beroemde samespraak, Klaas Waarzegger; 'n groot aantal Kaapse uitgawes in Nederlands gedruk, soos in wyle dr. Elizabeth Conradie se waardevolle Hollandse skrywers beskrywe; en 'n hele reeks uitgawes van die Eerste Taalbeweging wat as mylpale staan in die kultuurontwikkeling van die Afrikaanse taal en letterkunde. Maar afgesien van hierdie skatte van nasionale belang bestaan daar ook mooi eksemplare van ou handgeskrewe boeke van die middeleeue, wiegdrukke, en pragtige voorbeeldte van fyn-uitgevoerde en -ingebonde boeke van alle eeue, wat van lewendige belang behoort te wees vir enigeen wat die hede sowel as die verlede wil verstaan. Terloops wil ons hier melding maak van die kleurrolprent Die geskiedenis van die geskrewe woorde wat 'n paar jaar gelede deur die Biblioteek gemaak is, en deur skole ens. nog gratis geleent mag word.

We hope also to publish articles and notes on the history of the Library itself. There is an abundance of material, not only in the Library's own records, but in the newspapers and pamphlets of more than a century past.

History in a nutshell

Indeed, the founding and progress of the Library and its collections could be taken as the theme of the social and cultural history of South Africa of the last two hundred years. What part, for instance, was played in the cultural life of Cape Town by the Anglo-Indian visitors? They enriched the Library greatly. What books did both sections of the community read during the nineteenth century, and how were readers influenced by European literary movements of their time? The struggles of successive Committees to keep the library alive and adequately housed (struggles that still continue, Governments having apparently not changed much in the interval) make lively and interesting reading. How many people know, for instance, that if Charles Bell had had his way, the present Library building, instead of being planned in imitation of the Fitzwilliam Museum at Cambridge (at least, as to externals), might have been erected 'in a style somewhat resembling that of Queen Elizabeth's time', which would have made it something unique in Colonial architecture? These episodes are of more than local interest; and, surprisingly enough, there is no published account of them available, with the exception of the informative but brief Annals of the South African Library compiled by Mr. A. C. G. Lloyd in 1918 to commemorate the Library's first centenary.

There is a passage in the famous letter written by Sir George Grey to Judge Watermeyer in 1861, where he refers to his plan 'to publish, from ancient manuscripts new editions of works which I regarded as being capable original texts of great improvement'—a plan which he already realised he would never have the time to carry out. The Trustees have long had in mind this plan of their greatest benefactor. In 1917 it was put into effect, although not exactly in the form Grey envisaged, by the publication of the *Remarks of Van Pallandt—sold for a mere eighteenpence, but now a rare item of Africana worth many times that price. The Trustees had previously sponsored the publication of the Diary of Adam Tas†, with material drawn from the scarce copies of the Defence of Van der Stel, skilfully edited by Professor Leo Fouché. The success of these ventures led to the formation, in 1918, of the Van Riebeeck Society‡, whose headquarters are still at the South African Library, and whose reprints, and in some cases first printings of South African historical material, are now known the world over. There remains, however, much material in the Library's collections that awaits and deserves expert editing and publication, and awaits, too, the encouragement, interest and public spirit of a modern Sir George Grey or J. X. Merriman, whose work for the National Library will never be forgotten.

Among the tasks that are still uncompleted at the Library perhaps the most urgent and the most interesting is the cataloguing of those parts of the Grey Collection not already undertaken by Dr. W. H. I. Bleek, the former

Incunabula in

Grey Librarian. A beginning has at last been made on the Africana, which includes much rare and interesting pamphlet material, and further progress is being made with the cataloguing of the early printed books. Some years ago the present Librarian recatalogued the incunabula in this Collection, numbering more than a hundred in all, but the books themselves were taken from Cape Town for safe keeping in 1942, and the work could not then be completed. It is now being revised, and the Trustees hope to publish the catalogue in the Grey Bibliographies series later in 1946, or early in 1947. It will take the form of a hand-list of all incunabula in the Union, and readers of this Bulletin who know of the whereabouts of any books printed before 1500 that are not already recorded, are asked to send particulars at once to the Librarian.

SOME RECENT ACQUISITIONS

1. SACCHI (Bartholomaeus) de Platina. Platina de honesta voluptate & valitudine, vel de obsoniis, & arte coquinaria libri decem. 72 leaves. Strassburg, J. Knoblauch, 1517. Presented by Dr. C. Louis Leipoldt

First printed in 1475, this is the earliest work dealing in printed form with the preparation of food and drink. It consists largely of material derived from earlier writers. Platina, as he was commonly known, was born at Piadena in 1421, and later became Librarian of the Vatican Library, where he died in 1481. His treatise was one of the most popular works of its kind during the late 15th and the 16th centuries.

This copy is from the collection of cookery books formed by John Hodgkin, and has been added to the C. Louis Leipoldt Cookery Collection.

2. NEU-ERÖFFNETES AMPHITHEATRUM, worinnen II aus dem gantzen Africa, alle Nationem nach Ihrem Habit in saubern Figuren präsentiret. iv, 96p. Erfurt, Funcken, 1723. Purchased

This is the second of four volumes published between 1723-8, consisting of a compendium of information about the climate, soil, native races, costume, etc., of different parts of Africa. Pages 59-76 refer to Southern Africa, and are derived largely from Kolbe's account. The volume is interesting chiefly for the quaint woodcuts of native types, including a 'Caffer' and a Hottentot.

3. GALLERIA universale di tutti i popoli del mondo, con tavole. 3 v. in 2. Venezia, Giuseppe Antonelli, 1838-9. Purchased

The first volume deals with Asia, and the second and third with Africa and America respectively. The chief interest lies in the hand-coloured lithographed plates, more than 80 of which depict African scenes and peoples. The artist has used his imagination freely, and the plates illustrating the Cape are improbable and inaccurate, but none the less charming for that. Plate 49 shows a 'kraal ovvero villaggio di Ottentotti Olandes alla sponda del fiume Orania,' in which three European ox-waggons appear.

The work is not mentioned in Hiler's Bibliography of Costume, or the British Museum Catalogue. This copy lacks six of the African plates.

4. CATALOGUE of the Springbok Library. London, 1944.

Presented 'by the people of Britain' through Mrs. H. M. Lidderdale

This Catalogue, superbly bound and illuminated and enclosed in a specially carved casket, will be described, together with the Collection itself, in the next number of this Bulletin. The Collection will shortly be on display in the Fairbridge Room of the Library.

AN EARLY CAPE PRINTING DISCOVERY

In his Birth of printing in South Africa, first published more than thirty years ago*, Mr. A. C. G. Lloyd was able to piece together for the first time the little that we know about the earliest printing at the Cape. Subsequent writers have added a few details to Mr. Lloyd's pioneer work, but until recently no examples of printing at the Cape dated earlier than 1800 have come to light, other than the fragment of the Ritter Almanac for 1796, preserved in the South African Library at Cape Town, and a bilingual Military Proclamation signed by Major-General Dundas, and dated 26 February, 1799, which is in the Cape Archives. The records of the period of British occupation are notoriously incomplete; but from what we do know about the one small press used in Cape Town before the turn of the century, on which J. C. Ritter printed 'such trifles as his small apparatus would allow', it has seemed unlikely that any further examples of the earliest Cape printing would be discovered.

Early in 1946, however, the South African Library acquired a parcel of manuscript papers formerly belonging to Daniel Krynauw, a well-known resident at the Cape at the end of the 18th century. Among these papers, modestly stitched in grey paper covers, was a small eight-page pamphlet of unusual interest. On further examination it proved to be not only the third earliest example of Cape printing known still to exist, but the first book (as distinct from broadsheets and small almanacs) to be printed in South Africa. It is also a document of outstanding interest in the history of South African missions. Moreover, in tracing its history several facts have been discovered that throw new light on the earliest printing to be done in South Africa, other than in Cape Town itself.

The Missionary Society's Letter

The pamphlet is roughly printed on hand-made paper bearing the watermark 1796, and has the following title-page†:

BRIEF/van het/ZENDELINGS GENOOTSCHAP/te LONDON/Aan de Gods-dienst-lievende ingeze-/tenen/van de CAAP DE GOEDE HOOP/uit 't Engelsch vertaald,
/en door V: A: SCHOONBERG ge-/drukt voor 't/ZUID-AFRICAANSCHE GE-/
NOOTSCHAP/ter uitbreiding van CHRISTUS ko-ningryk./MDCCXCIX

It is a Dutch translation of the letter sent by the London Missionary Society to 'the Believers at the Cape' in 1799, and is the only copy known to have survived.

*A. C. G. Lloyd, 'Birth of printing in South Africa.' The Library, 3rd series, v. 5, p. 31-43, January 1914. Revised and reprinted in South African Libraries, v. 1, p. 11-18, July 1933. An unpublished Calendar of Documents relating to the early history of Cape printing and transcribed by Mr. Lloyd is filed in the Africana Collection of the South African Library (575. c. 54).

†See Plate.

It is now necessary to recall the circumstances that led to the printing and distribution of this letter. 'The year 1799,' says Dr. J. du Plessis in his History of Christian Missions, 'is a cardinal date in the history of missions in South Africa; it witnessed the arrival of the first missionaries of the great London Society, and it saw the establishment of the first indigenous South African Society.'[†] The second event was a direct result of the first. On 31 March, 1799, the convict ship Hillsborough, bound for Botany Bay, arrived at the Cape with four missionaries aboard, Dr. J. T. van der Kemp, J. J. Kicherer, John Edmond and William Edwards. They were enthusiastically received by 'Christians and mission friends' at the Cape, who had been fired by the news of the founding of the earliest missionary societies in England, and of the Netherlands Missionary Society at Rotterdam in 1797. 'General Dundas, the Governor, and Mr. van Ryneveld, the Fiscal, granted them audiences, evinced great interest in the work they proposed to undertake, and promised them all possible aid and protection.'

Dr. van der Kemp brought with him a letter of greeting and recommendation written in English, and addressed by the Directors of the London Missionary Society to the Christians of South Africa. This letter was translated into Dutch and read from their pulpits by the Dutch ministers of Cape Town. As a result, subscription lists were opened, and a series of meetings held, culminating in the founding of the first South African Missionary Society, with the title of 'Het Zuid Afrikaansche Genootschap ter bevordering van de Uitbreiding van Christus Koningrijk' ('The South African Society for Promoting the Extension of Christ's Kingdom'). This was on 22 April, 1799, and among the foundation members were Daniel Krynaauw (among whose papers our pamphlet was found); Widow Muller[‡], who contributed the equivalent of £1,250 to the Society's funds; and V. A. Schoonbergs, the printer of the pamphlet, who was subsequently elected Second Treasurer of the Society on 8 May.

[‡]In an Appendix du Plessis quotes an account of 'Instruction to the Heathen' given by 'sister the widow Moller at the house of brother Schoonberg' in Longmarket Street, well before the arrival of the missionaries from Europe. op. cit., p. 421.

§Valentinus Alexius Schoonberg (originally Schönberg) was born at Trauenstein, Bavaria, in 1751, and came to the Cape as a soldier in the ship De Hoop in 1776. He applied for burgher rights in 1783, and in that year married Anna Frederica Koning, by whom he had a number of children. He took up business as a retail merchant and later as confectioner and gingerbread-maker at 31, Longmarket Street, Cape Town. He was reputed to be a man of some learning, and his son Valentinus was taught Latin, French and English. He died, a respected citizen of Cape Town, on 20 May, 1825, and was buried in the vault of the Grooto Kerk.

His eldest legitimate son, bearing the same name as himself, was appointed to a minor Government post under the British occupation, and lost his employment when the Dutch took over in 1803. He was reinstated, however, and in 1819 became Landrost of Swellendam.

The Circumstances of Printing

At their meeting of 6 May, 1799, the Directors of the newly-formed Society resolved that an answer to the London letter be drawn up and despatched, and twelve days later the Committee decided to send copies of the London letter to the 'Eerwaarde Leraars der buiten gemeentes in deese colonie.'* In the manuscript Minutes of this meeting of 18 May, the following passage occurs :

'Hierop wierd door den President een Paquét geopend waar in zich bevonden Negentig Exemplaaren van de Londonsche Genoodschaps brief, waarvan een Aantal onder de Presid. en Leeden der Vergadering wierden verdeeld, en de overige Zewentig goed gevonden, te stellen in handen van den Thesaurier, Br. Wijdeman om dezelve ten voordeele van dit Genoodschap te Verkoopen tot Vier Schellingen 't Stuk. Zijnde vervolgens door den Presies voorgedraagen, of't niet nodig zoude zijn om een Druk Pers uit London te ontbieden, welker gebruik veel nut en dienst 't Genoodschap zoude aanbrengen. Waar op ter kennisse van de Vergadering gebracht wierd, dat er reeds een door Br. Schoonberg was opgegeven welke gem. Broeder aan 't Genoodschap zoude overlaaten, waar in de Vergadering beruste.'†

It is not clear from this extract whether the copies of the letter that were opened at this meeting were those printed by Schoonberg, but it is evident that he had access to a press ; and the question immediately arises : whose press ?

So far as our knowledge went at the time this letter was discovered, there was only one press in Cape Town in 1799 : the small hand affair brought out by J. C. Ritter, or received shortly after his arrival, as bookbinder to the Dutch East India Company, in 1784. It will be recalled that the Council of Seventeen in Holland at long last agreed, in 1795, to allow a press to be imported at the Cape, and on the strength of this undertaking, Ritter was promised the Superintendency of the Government Press. The Cape surrendered to the English, the press was never sent, and Ritter was still further dam. Just before his father's death he returned to Cape Town and the post of Sequestrator.

Schoonberg's eldest daughter, Christina Johanna, married the missionary William Edwards, and accompanied him to Kuruman, where they were later encountered by P. B. Borchers, who knew Christina's parents in Cape Town. (Cape Almanacs, 1801-2, 1805-25 ; C. C. de Villiers, Geslacht-Register, v. 3, 1894, p. 241 ; Werner Schmidt, Das Kulturantell des Deutschstums am Aufbau des Burenvolkes, Hanover, 1938, p. 179 ; J. L. M. Franken, 'Die kulturele aandeel van die Duitsdom' in die opbou van die Boervolk 'Tydskrif vir wetenskap en kuns', v. 17, 1938-9, p. 16 ; P. B. Borchers, Autobiography, Cape Town, 1861, pp. 87-9 ; and information kindly supplied by Dr. J. Hoge).

*In his History of Christian Missions, du Plessis notes that 'copies of the letter of the London Missionary Society were printed and distributed to all parts of the country' (p. 93) (cf. Trans. Miss. Soc. I., p. 324), but did not realise the significance of the statement in Cape printing history. Lloyd, writing two years later, does not mention the episode.

†Notule van de Z. A. Genootschap, 18 Mei, 1799. I am indebted to Ds. J. A. S. Oberholster, Kerkargivaris, Cape Town, for his kindness in allowing me to consult the records of the Society.

disappointed when an English master printer, Harry Harwood Smith, arrived in January, 1799, with recommendations from Earl Macartney, and was given the post of Clerk and Examiner in the office of the Secretary to the Government, where he assisted in the printing of a number of Government proclamations during 1799. Mr. Lloyd conjectures, probably correctly, that the Military Proclamation of 26 February, 1799, now in the Cape Archives, was in fact printed by Smith on Ritter's press, eking out with the few materials that Smith had brought with him to the Cape.

It is known that Schoonberg's son, Valentinus Alexius jnr., was later employed as compositor in the Government printing office where Ritter's press had been kept, and the fact that the type is similar, and the paper has the same watermark, lends support to the hypothesis that the Letter was printed on the same press as the Proclamation. Moreover, Ritter and Schoonberg were both Bavarians, and were probably well acquainted with one another.

An Unsuspected Press ?

In studying the Transactions of the Missionary Society for further clues, however, I came across a passage that has not to my knowledge ever been quoted before, which throws light on several mysteries of early Cape printing. In a letter to the Directors of the London Missionary Society, dated 13 May, 1799, van der Kemp remarks that

‘ a Dutch translation of your letter is printed on our press, and given to the new-created Society. This is the first religious publication in Africa, of which every copy, though not containing more than five pages, will be sold at two shillings English.’*

It would seem, then, that van der Kemp had with him at the Cape a printing press—which he may have brought with him, or which may even have been Ritter's old hand-press which he took over for mission purposes. This may also be the press on which van der Kemp and Read printed (in 1801) ‘ four hundred copies of a spelling-table ’† at Graaff Reinet, while they prepared the more complete spelling-book that was referred to in van der Kemp's letter to Dundas of 11 November of that year :

‘ The number of children in our reading school (at Graaff Reinet) amounts to one hundred and twelve, of whom, however, seldom more than seventy are present. We have been obliged to print a spelling-book for their use, and we hope that your Excellency will permit us to print and to sell little school books for the benefit of the future establishment, and to educate some of our young men in the art of printing.’‡

Trans. Miss. Soc.*, I. (2nd edn., 1804), p. 370. The Letter contains four leaves, or eight pages.

†Ibid., p. 481. Entry for 24 June.

‡Ibid., p. 499.

This spelling-book is again referred to in the missionaries' account of their settlement at Bota's Place, near Fort Frederick, where they set up temporary quarters on 7 March, 1802 :

'We found here... a dwelling house of three rooms, another house fit for a church and a school, and a third where we placed our printing office... Twice a day we gave instruction in reading and writing, for which we printed a little spelling-book of 3138 monosyllables.*'

Lastly, this is possibly the press on which (as I hope to show in another article) van der Kemp printed, in 1804, the much-discussed Bethelsdorp Catechism, whose existence has hitherto been doubted by Mr. Lloyd, among others†.

Apart from identifying our Letter, then, this one sentence of van der Kemp's enables us to promote Graaff Reinet as the second place of printing in South Africa, outside Cape Town‡.

and the first

Yet another Press

To return to Schoonberg's letter, however, we can now say with reasonable certainty that it was translated from the English (probably by van der Kemp himself) and printed by Schoonberg in a very amateur way on some date between 1 April and 13 May, 1799. The press was evidently a small one, and the type was incomplete, for at the end of the Letter, Schoonberg naively apologises for the 's' which he has been obliged to use here and there for lack of a 'z.'

So far as the South African Society is concerned, however, the episode had an interesting sequel. In spite of Schoonberg's offer to put a press at the Society's disposal, the Directors evidently raised the question of importing a press from London for their own use in their reply to the Missionary Society of 20 May, 1799. The copy of this letter that survives in the Society's records makes no mention of a press, but this was probably added as a postscript, for in their next letter to London, written on 8 June, the following passage occurs :

'P.S.—Noopens de Drukpers in onze voorige brief verzogt, zyn wy geraaden geworden om naader onderzoek bij de Regeering daaromtrent van te doen, maar is ons door den Heer Fischaal van Ryneveld, ten eene maal ontzegd, want dat het gouvernement alhier nooit zuikhs heeft toegestaan, dat iemand particulier mogt Drukken. Dus zullen wy ernu tot ons Leedwesen van af moeten zien en Ueds voor de moeyte van den Inkoop bedanken.'§

§ Uitgaande Brieven, 8 Junie, 1799.

This letter was not answered by the London Society until 25 March, 1800, when the Secretary remarked :

' As you have countermanded the printing press it shall not be sent, although we had provided one for your service. We hope you will find no difficulty in getting anything printed at the established Presses that may tend to the advantage of your Society and of the Missionary Cause. '

This pious hope was not to be fulfilled, for although in February, 1800, a complete printing press had been set up in Cape Town by the merchants and slave-owners, Messrs. Walker and Robertson, who later secured the sole right to undertake commercial printing at the Cape, the Government, in the following October, took over their press and indeed all printing for the next 22 years. During the regime of the Batavian Republic the Society's activities were severely discouraged by Commissioner de Mist, and it was not for many years that the Society were able to print locally as and how they wished.

D. H. VARLEY.

Note on the Text and Translation

The original letter in English addressed by the Directors of the London Missionary Society to the Christians of South Africa, is not among the records of the Zuid-Afrikaansche Genootschap, although a note on the first page of the Minute Book states that it has been placed there. The Librarian of the London Missionary Society states that no copies of outgoing letters for this period have been preserved in the Society's Archives. The text of the letter in English does not appear in the Transactions of the L.M.S., or in any source so far consulted by the present writer. A Dutch translation, however, appears in the journal De Honigby, pt. V., p. 82-84, 1843, and du Plessis translates part of this version into English in his History, p. 92. The letter is addressed to 'the Believers at the Cape', and is signed by J. Eye, Secretary.
